Monopod

Jasper Morrison, 2008

Monopod is a sculptural piece, vaguely reminiscent of primordial objects made of wood or stone. The chair has a sturdy, weighted presence, tapering with an elegant curve to a wedge-shaped backrest.

As a compact visitor chair, Monopod is a perfect companion for sofas and larger armchairs in home interiors. Thanks to its solid structure, it can also be used in public settings such as lounges and reception areas. The upholstered plastic shell structure allows Monopod to retain its precise shape even after extended use. Covered in fabric or leather, the chair is surprisingly comfortable despite its apparent simplicity.
